FEARING FOR

Lying Seriously III in India On Eve of Sixty-Eighth Birthday

BOMBAY, Oct. 1 (A).-Mahanda K. Gandhi, the frail little brown man who led India's Nationalists in their turbulent course, is ill on the sve of his sixty-eighth birthday.

Physicians who have examined him fear his life is in danger, although his blood pressure is re-turning to normal. It was said Gendhi recently has grown weaker. A complete rest was ordered two weeks ago.

The Central Provinces inspector-general of hospitals told attendants not to permit him to do any work. A POWERFUL FORCE

Gandhi abondoned active politics in 1934, but he still is a powerful force in India's political life. His life-time policy of peaceful methods gained a new victory this Summer then he persuaded Congress party inces under the Government of India Act.

Premier States Health Insurance Plans Put Aside For Present

"I'll tell you what will be done nothing! We are not going to have any new major undertakings at this the other night, and I meant health insurance," Premier Pattullo de-clared flatly yesterday, on the eve of his departure for Ottawa.

The Premier had been asked if the Government would implement a new health insurance scheme at the coming session, or repeal the pres-ent statute. He replied that no health scheme would be implemented, and that the statute would be allowed to

POLITICAL "GUINEA PIGS"

A recent visitor to Victoria from Alberta de scribed the course being pursued by the Govern-ment of that Province as resembling the adventures of Alice in Wonderland, Premier Aberhart may well say of the legislation he is piling up on the statute book—"It's my own invention." Seemingly the object of all the Bills of the present ergency session is to devise—by pursuing consions infinite—ways and means to circumvent Federal authority. Whether it is the banks, or the Press, or the courts, Premier Aberhart, like the "Queen" of Lewis Carroll's tale, goes stamping about and shouting "off with his head," or "off with her head," about once a minute. For the Premier, however, there is no humor in the situa tion. He is in deadly earnest or else he would The fanatic, however, has yet to be born who has any sense of the ridiculous or a conception of the safeguards provided by prescription and tradition for the well-being of society.

The Bills implying defiance of Federal au thority have come thick and fast at Edmonton during the last few days. One of these is that to put restrictions on the Press. It contains implications of a provincial power to put newspapers out of business. Ostensibly the legislation is designed to insure publication of accurate news and information. In reality the political desire is to insure the publication of Social Credit propaganda without cost to its proponents. That is said outright: "The chairman of the Board constituted by the Alberta Social Credit Act is given authority to enforce publication of any statement furnished by him affecting the objects of any Government policies." That is an evidence of Socialism run rampant, and another illustration of the Social Credit slogan of "something for nothing." Newspapers will have come to a pretty pass when they must open their column any governmental propaganda whatever its stripe. They must in this, as in all other matters use their own judgment, not have a partizan judgment forced upon them.

The spectacle of Alberta's legislative anomalies is ridiculous enough, but no aspect of it more so than the attempt to make the Press subservient to Social Credit doctrines. It is illustrative, however, of the mentality that seems to pervade so many proponents of this creed. Their desire is to make everything the instrument of their theory, and in Alberta censorship of the Press is regarded as a vade mecum of the faith. The ethics of brotherhood and good-will, in word and thought and deed, are not a part of Social Credit as exemplified by its supporters. Premier Aberhart, imbued with the doctrine of dictatorship, wants to make every institution of the land his "guinea pig" for experiment, and when one "guinea pig" objects, as in Wonderland, he is immediately suppressed by the officers of the

AN OPPRESSIVE BUREAUCRACY

Timely warning against the "unabated preten ions of bureaucratic usurpation" in government was given by Lord Hewart of Bury, Lord Chief Justice of England, when he spoke in Toronto recently. He drew attention to how Parliament were tending to abdicate powers which rightly ng to them by transferring them into the hands of governmental departments and officials by passing skeleton statutes and leaving the framing of regulations to departmental officer who were subsequently placed beyond the jurisdiction of the courts.

"This seems to be another way," said the Lord Chief Justice, "of providing that departmental usurpation or excess of jurisdiction shall go unchallenged and unchecked. And it seems to be rely, wish to put their orders, their regulations and their decisions beyond the reach of the law. You may be inclined to think, as some of us do, that not the least sinister part of the whole business is that there is evidently in some quarters a determined wish and endeavor to escape superitendence and review by the ordinary law. Lord Hewart carefully prefaced his remarks with the words: "It may be that in Canada you are wholly free from this plague." He probably was fully aware that the plague is of greater proportions in this country than in England. Many Acts in both Federal and Provincial fields have been framed to make administrative law supreme over statutory law. With each succeeding piece of legislation, it seems, when authority felegated to boards or commissions, that wider and more drastic powers are abdicated by the legislatures. The tendency to safeguard the boards against adverse court decisions, by closing those courts to actions under the laws, steadily grows more firmly established. An oppressive bureaucracy results.

CHARACTER IN LEADERSHIP

The Ottawa Journal, the most widely quoted newspaper in Canada, is in opposition in a forceto the policies of Premier Hepburn, of Ontario, in the present election campaign in that ce. It believes that the issue is the character of the Premier, and it is attacking this in a manner that is reminiscent of old-time campaigns when the personal element in contestants bulked in a larger way than it usually does in these latter es. For instance, it says of the Premier that "he doesn't care what he says, so long as he thinks what he says will help him, politically, and can be said at the moment when untruth can't be proved." That is a somewhat grave on, but The Journal gives an illustration In a speech at Windsor on May 5, 1934, when he was fighting for office, Mr. Hepburn said: "The nt of graft in connection with the Liquor Board if this policy is maintained—and I believe it is amounts to something like $3,000,000 a year.

Mr. Hepburn was elected and instituted an investigation into the affairs of the Liquor Board. He did not find, as The Journal says, "three cents worth of graft or wrong-doing." Mr. Hepburn in his last campaign attacked patronage, but, paradoxically enough, since in office he has given the most glaring example of it in provincial history for several years. He has, what The Journal calls, "devilled the Civil Service by ruthless discharges of good men to be replaced by his own Other indictments of him by paper are to the effect that he has denounced Dominion leaders of the Liberal Party, tried paper are to the effect that he has denounced Dominion leaders of the Liberal Party, tried continually and in many respects to block the law courts to people, quarrelled with his own Cabinet Ministers, and boasted of substituting force for law in regard to labor trouble. The Ottawa Journal then says:

"The cold fact is that hardly any statement Mr. Hepburn makes which is not liable to immediate test as to its truth can be accepted at its face value. His temper is that of a dictator, his veracity is only what suits a dictator who cares not by what means or what statements he can get or keep power, and he constantly defies the courts. It seems to The Journal that this is not the sort of man Ontario should wish to present to the world as its chief citizen. Party is not really involved. Mr. Hepburn's cifaracter is at issue. He is neither a safe man nor a creditable man to retain as ruler of Ontario. The voters in Ottawa or elsewhere who want to do their best for this city and Province should, we venture to think, vote for the candidates who are lined up against Mr. Hepburn."

A DEMONSTRATION OF FRIENDSHIP

It is not too much to say that President Roose velt, of the United States, was deeply touched by his reception here. It was in the nature of a wholesome regard for his personality and a tribute to the position he enjoys in world affairs. Moreover, it was emblematic of the close friendship that has existed so long between Canada grown man over there; he is about and the neighboring republic. The President, it to seems, was struck by the character of the welcome. It was vociferous and yet pervaded by a calm on which he commented, and that is perhaps what struck him as different to other haps what struck him as different to other velcomes to which he is accustomed. In any expressions of opinion to which he gave vent on the nature of his reception here he spoke from his heart and with a conviction that was immediately apparent to his hearers. Moreover, all those with him, including the newspapermen were loud in their praise of the attitude of Vicorians, which seems to have been in the nature of a revelation to them. It may well be believed that because of Thursday's demonstration a new link will be forged in the chain of friendship between Canada and the United States which has been maintained, amplified and cemented during the past 105 years.

LAMENTS OF THE WEST

Without having any mandate to defend Federal policy we can, in the light of facts alone, affirm that the Canadian West has been the principal artisan of its own misfortune, and that from the day it will dmit that freely without trying to throw the blame or all sides, it will be on the way to safety. Like mos spoilt children, the West refuses to confess that she an sales, it will be on the way logastey. Lake most spoilt children, the West refuses to confess that she was spoiled by the old provinces of the Dominion, although it has been to a wide extent. The least it should do now is not to reproach us too much for it., Outside of a few rare exceptions, the old provinces have not been heard to criticize the special grants accorded by Ottawa to each of the new provinces. We understood, in Quebec at least, that the depression had been particularly severe out there, and we let the millions be voted without protesting. Let us stop these jeremiads, like that of Mr. George Ferguson at the Canadian Institute of Economics and Political Science. No one has been without sin, the East no more than the West. But the time has come to make a change, and that is what we ask from our frields of the Prairies, at the same time assuring them frields of the Prairies, at the same time assuring them of our constant friendship and our unshakeable desire to work with them, to help them at times.—La Presse

The basketball situation is still the same after that stormy meeting held earlier this week. One member of the School Board suggests that the Dominoes and the League use alternate Saturday nights at the High gym. That suggestion is all right, but if the Dominoes didn't play on the League's Saturdays, what about the attend-ance? Already the Dominoes have dropped from the League and, after all, they are the drawing power in local basketball, there's little question about that. So if anybody else has a solution to the complicated state of affairs, send to those concerned, for I'm not getting into this argument. Also, Bishop Sexton yesterday an nounced that in order to cope with the work of the cathedral parish, a second curate, in the person of Rev. A. E. Hendy, of Regina, had been appointed to the cathedral staff. This was, of course, addi-tional to Rev. E. O. Robathan, who has been assistant priest at the cathedral for some time.

FEW AVAILABLE MEN

In referring to this matter, Bish Sexton spoke of the difficulty of sexton spoke of the difficulty of finding men for the church at the present time. This he attributed to what he characterized as "the wastage of the war years," visible in other callings as well as that of the church. He had spent a week-end at Cambridge with Canon B. K. ngham, principal of Westcott who had made a comment to the effect that the church for the next five or six years would have to face a very lean time while waiting for some of the younger men to develop. There were plenty of men offering for Holy Orders but, strange to say, the best of ther were no longer coming from Oxford and Cambridge, but from the Uni-versity of London and the other

"The Dean of St. Paul's and the new Bishop of Portsmouth are Lon-don University men," the Bishop noted here. "In other fields as well as the church, the drought made by the war on good men has been felt. A New Type of Piano for the Modern Home

I N the home of today how often one finds the only jarring note is a piano of a design acceptable a quarter of a century ago. Everything else is in keeping with the modern trend . . . and that is exactly why Heintzman & Co. has developed the new "Chateau" model. See this modern instrument so conservative of space yet so superbly of Heintzman quality. Its price is only $550 and you can own one for as little as 10% down, with the balance distributed over a convenient period. Used pianos are accepted in partial exchange.

He took Eyelyn in his arms and started up the steps. Polly's voice with a started up the steps.

started up the steps. Polly's voice hurtled after him: "It's all a complete surprise to you, isn't it, Lieutenant Brell?" But she went to the phone and called the doctor. It was phone and called the doctor. It was Brell, she could not accuse him.

"Cleaves," she said. "Cecil Cleaves." And suddenly she was telling him everything, and when kneeling on the opposite side of the bed, sobbing. "You'd better get that girl out of here. Until she's quiet, anyway," the doctor said to Jerry Brell. "There's nothing for me to do. Tell the police they can find me at my home. Sorry, you know,

When the doctor had gone, Brell and pulled her to her feet. "We'll go downstairs for a while, Shella. Polly will be here." Polly did not look at him, but when she heard the door close behind them, she sat in the chair the doctor had vacated a

The lips moved again. There was no sound, but the word formed was "Julian . . . "

Polly knew then it was useless to try to get a statement, a definite accusation from the dying woman. She, Polly Markey, must tell the story that would identify Cecil Cleaves as one better known in this ary from the British Government as house, at least during the time she had been there, by another name

She was about to sink into the chair again when she realized that Evelyn's evelids had lifted The d blue eyes refle pain of that moment of conse

Because she had told him good-bye last night, Polly had let herself assume that Angus was no longer on the island. Reminded, she said now: "No. I'm sure he doesn't know. Evelyn was no longer listening. It was just possible, she thought, that Angus had already gone to the train, but they could at least make are flort to get in touch with him.

For a few moments longer she stood there looking at Evelyn; then she went to the door and opened it.

Angus was standing there, one hand extended as if he had been reaching for the knob. The hand reached out and took one of her hands and held it in a warm, comforting clasp.
"Poor little Polly," Angus said gently. Slowly he approached the bed and studied the tallow-white features. "Thank heaven, she's not suffering," he said.

"No." She moved up beside him.

"Why haven't the police come, Angus?"

He spoke without looking at her.

"They're downstairs. I don't know how long they've been there. The doctor met them as he was leaving

However, in addition to the constipation and the pain in the abdomen, there may be an occasional nausea and vomiting, mucous in the stools and, at time, actual diarrhoea.

when these individuals are examined it is found that they are usually between twenty and forty years of age, are extremely nervous, and tire very easily. "Abdominal distress, constipation and flatulence (gaa) are the leading complaints. The distress varies from a deepseated continuous discomfort to severe cramp-like pain." The pain or distress seems to shift about, but is more commonly found in the right lower side of the abdomen—the appendix region. The constipation and flatulence are present in 90 per cent of cases.

Speaker Declares Legislation Has Meant Better Times for City

Better times in Victoria on Vancouver Island, and throughout the passed by the Federal Liberal Administration, were described last evening by C. Jack McDowell at a meet-

Mr. McDowell outlined the benefits that would be enjoyed by local craftsmen and building supply houses, through contracts let by the Department of National Defence.
These include construction of a vessel at Yarrows, the joint service

In describing the Federal Housing Act and Home Improvement Plan the speaker pointed out how this legislation had stimulated building throughout Canada.

HELPS LOCAL TRADE

There are a good many homes now being built in Oak Bay and it is better understood, more advantage is being taken of it, and loans

Speaking of Vancouver Island nore particularly Mr. McDowell to Port Renfrew, he said he had had completed a survey of the Stanley Creed, president of the plained that Mr. McDowell had generously filled in for H. W. Davey,
